This is Coahoma Junior College ... "The College That Cares"

Beneath the spacious skies in the northern area of the Mississippi Delta lies a citadel of learning — COAHOMA JUNIOR COLLEGE. The college, throughout its 35-year existence, has a reputation of placing people at the heart of its raison d'être. Coahoma was charted as a people-centered "College That Cares," and today stands on the principles of that tradition.

Historically, alumni perceive Coahoma as an oasis of education — academic, vocational, and technical pursuits — with accessibility to a myriad of cultural and social exposure. Students at Coahoma share a bond of friendship developed through the realm of education, competitive sports, and a family-oriented atmosphere that enriches their lives — an enrichment that conveys Coahoma Junior College is "The College That Cares."

To intensify Coahoma's image as "The College That Cares" is a competent administration and faculty who pride themselves in guiding students in their quest for proficiency. CJC students realize their potentials through the learning processes which enable them to mature, internally and externally, while progressing toward the apex of academic, vocational, and technical excellence.

People are the college, the commitment, excitement, and involvement that make COAHOMA JUNIOR COLLEGE — "The College That Cares."

Beautiful Mackey Lake geographically stretches across the eastern border of the majestic Coahoma Junior College campus. The scenic shores of this inland body of water parallels one of the campus landscape areas. It is a favorite spot for many of CJC students who find spare time to relax on its lakefront, study, go boat riding, fishing, picnicking, and sometimes listening to their favorite jams.

The Com

Students come to Coahoma to chart their futures. For those who show potentials in their chosen fields, but lack efficiency in supporting subjects have the opportunity to strengthen their weaknesses while developing skills through the various learning labs at Coahoma. Through these study and learning modes, students gain knowledge and confidence in themselves and their ability to perform.

In COUNSELING the concept of individuality is accepted . . . there is recognition of the fact that each person has needs, concerns, feelings and problems that are unique. Coahoma Junior College, as a people-centered institution, prides itself in handling people-centered problems. The following seven pages are intended to reveal, through pictures, some of the unique features of Coahoma and its determination to survive disaster that helped make it "The College That Cares."

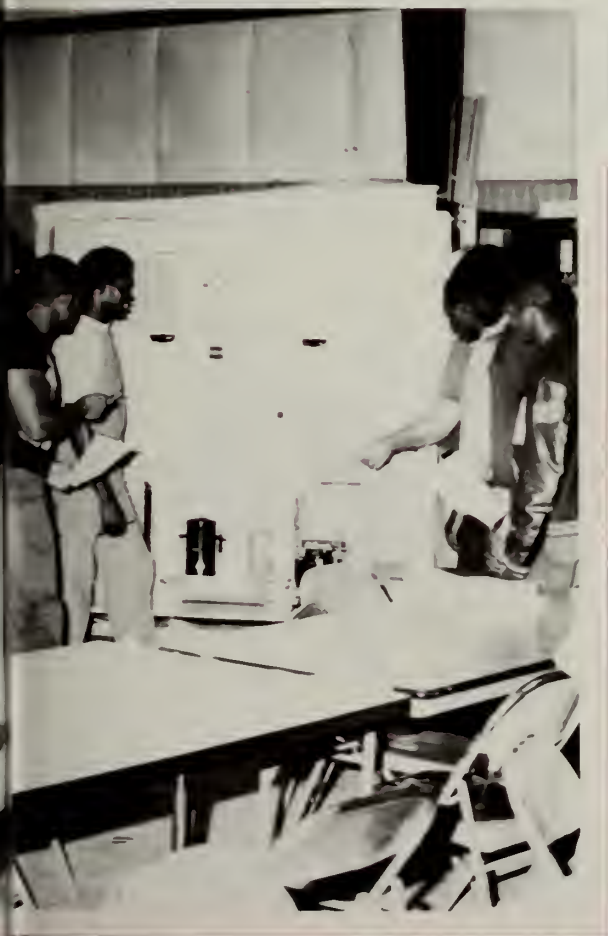

Just as a rainbow contains a myriad of colors, vocational and technical careers span a spectrum of unique opportunities for students at Coahoma Junior College. The institution has a tradition of planning and implementing careers to meet student and community needs.

The May 2, Tornado

When a twister, packing with it high winds and heavy rain, zigzagged through the 70-acre campus causing extensive property damages, CJC family underwent one of its worst and most frightening experiences recorded in CJC's 34-year history.

— An Unforgettable Experience

Manifestation of the College's concept of coping with disaster and being a winner was exemplified by the administration, faculty, students, and friends from the community, state and nation — when they undertook the grim task of putting the campus back in order. These two pages are scenes from the "Unforgettable Experience."

The College — A Look at Its Past and Present Growth

On a breezy spring June day in 1949, the Board of Trustees for Coahoma Agricultural High School (Aggie) and the Coahoma County Board of Supervisors agreed to extend Aggie's curriculum to include grades thirteen and fourteen, thus creating the first traditionally Black public junior college in Mississippi.

In 34 years, Coahoma Junior College has come a long way. From its beginning on a 26 acre tract, the campus has almost tripled in size and now stretches over 70 acres bordered by picturesque Mackey Lake.

Coahoma's educational saga began with 26 students and a faculty borrowed from Aggie. Today, Coahoma is a community of scholars with an enrollment of more than 1,600 students and approximately 100 faculty and staff.

From the 13 buildings shared with Aggie, the college has grown to include 25 major buildings.

During the past 3.8 decades, the college has experienced phenomenal growth and development in program and course offerings. From the initial 10 course offerings in 1949, the college now has curricula to include 56 diverse and innovative areas.

The decade of the '80's brought to Coahoma a new era of institutional development and a new dimension in high technology.

All in all, Coahoma Junior College is a campus with an illustrious history of providing the time and the place for:

- obtaining a quality education
- having fun and being serious
- meeting new friends
- exploring new ideas and interests
- discovering oneself to the fullest

The Active Life of Dr. McKinley Charles Martin

CJC President leads an active, productive, and energetic life. His Caring and concerns for "the good life" for his family, the college, and the community take him in various directions: as a family man, from the State Capitol to the White House; and from the podium addressing various audiences, to serving as host for many community, state, and national groups and figures. 1. The Family — sitting, Dr. and Mrs. McKinley C. Martin, standing — The Children — (from left) McKinley, Jr., Marcia, and Myron. 2. Dr. Martin delivering Jackson State University's 1984 Commencement Address. 3. Dr. Martin leaves for national meeting in Washington, D.C. 4. Dr. Martin and U.S. Official Margaret Seagars. 5. Dr. Martin, a perfect host for the Coahoma County Chamber of Commerce and Industrial Foundation Board Christmas Dinner held on the CJC campus.

Special Recognition To . . .

. . . Dr. McKinley Charles Martin President

The 1985 Coahoman staff recognizes the contributions Dr. McKinley Charles Martin is making to Coahoma Junior College and Agricultural High School. Since his appointment as President of his Alma Mater in 1979, Dr. Martin's broad visionary conception and his dynamic implementation of an ideal progressive and a "Caring" community college has positioned Coahoma as a pace-setting institution. Under his energetic leadership, the college has attained significant accomplishments and achievements. His successes as an administrator can be attributed to his reputation as an educator and his firm commitment to excellence.

During his four years as Chief Executive of Coahoma Junior College, Dr. Martin has distinguished himself as an educator, a builder and an humanitarian.

As an educator, he has successfully and innovationally expanded Coahoma's program and course offerings.

As a builder, two new residence halls have been erected, the construction of a vocational-technical annex and a physical plant building are under way. Because of his zeal for educational excellence, he has successfully piloted numerous federal and state grant awards at the college. Most recent among other federal awards is the Endowment Grant.

As a humanitarian, his services through the various community, state, and national organizations and boards stands as a shining beacon for his commitment to Coahoma Junior College's motto: "The College That Cares."

The Coahoman staff salutes Dr. McKinley Charles Martin as an administrator, an educator, a builder and an humanitarian. This tribute, we believe, is a reward he richly deserves for the impact he has made on the lives of many people through his leadership.

CJC-AHS Scholars Honored for Excellence

Dr. McKinley C. Martin in a dual role — President of Coahoma Junior College and Superintendent of Coahoma Agricultural High School District — recognized the 1984-85 Fall Semester Scholars at a special dinner. Speaking to the group of students, Dr. Martin commended them for their scholarly attainment, before presenting each a Certificate of Achievement. Attending the Honors Dinner were, along with CJC-AHS administration, the students' parents and their elementary and high school principals.

CJC Celebrates Thirty-four Years

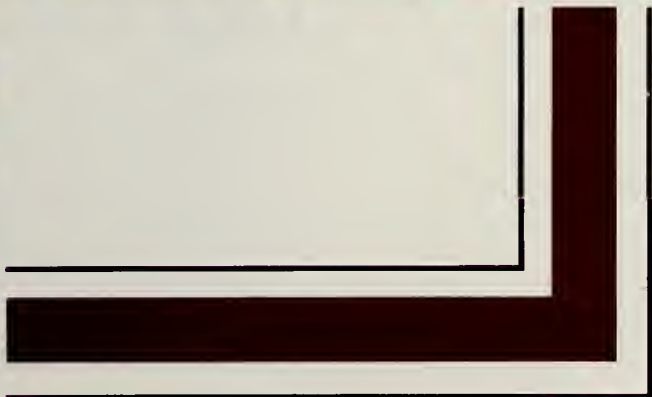

The saga of Coahoma Junior College was told during the college's first Founder's Day/Dedication celebration. Highlighting the ceremony was an address by Dr. Margaret Seagears, Executive Director, White House Initiative on Historically Black Colleges and Universities. As the college's past and present accomplishments were told, alumni, friends, and former administrators took note of how Coahoma is continuing to live up to its image of being "The College That Cares."

When the program came to a close, Dr. Martin extended thanks to the many alumni, friends, and local, state, and national officials for coming. With music provided by the CJC-AHS Faculty Choir, the program ended with everyone spiritedly singing the Alma Mater.

On the opposite page: Dr. Lenora Cole-Alexander, Director of Women's Bureau, U.S. Department of Labor, and Dr. Seagears conduct a mini seminar prior to the program. Mrs. Bernice Williams, Director, Office of Small and Disadvantaged Business Utilization, U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, and Mrs. Beverly Hogan, Executive Director, Federal-State Programs, Office of the Governor, Jackson, Miss., relax.

Other highlights of the 1984 Founder's Day celebration include the participation of former administrators and teachers, and U.S. Senators and Representatives.

CJC Receives Endowment Grant

U.S. official came to Coahoma to present the College an Endowment Grant. Through this matching grant the college can develop fiscal stability. Dr. C. Ronald Kimberling, Deputy Assistant Secretary for Higher Education Programs, Office of Post Secondary Education, U.S. Department of Education, made the presentation. Coahoma continues to move forward, seeking to be the best, striving for excellence and holding fast to its reputation as "The College That Cares."

Through the General Education Program at Coahoma, inmates from Parchman are given the opportunity to pursue the associate in arts degree.

The final day for those in pursuit of excellence came to an end for many. Wherever they go they will have the certainty of knowing that they reflect a measure of the success of a "College That Cares."

CJC Gets New Project

Coahoma's perception of caring is demonstrated through a Minority Enterprise Project awarded to the College's Division of Business and Commerce from the U.S. Department of Commerce. The two-phase project intertwine learning experiences for 500 youths and technical assistance for 25 local entrepreneurs.

A Minority Small Business Banquet, sponsored by the Division of Business, brought business proprietors and managers from Clarksdale, along with members of the Coahoma County Chamber of Commerce and Industrial Foundation Board to CJC campus to formulate plans for enhancing their enterprises.

A highlight of the banquet was an address by Mr. Mayo Wilson, (photo 2) Vice President, United Southern Bank, Clarksdale, Mississippi. Dr. Martin, (photo 3) uniquely explains how these and many other offerings help Coahoma hold fast to its credo — "The College That Cares."

CJC tradition of "Caring" for the dignity of human lives is reflected through its graduates. Alumni and friends come 'home' to share in various college sponsored activities, and to show, through their accomplishments, how proud they are to be a part of the college's heritage of "Caring."

Throughout their visit they have the opportunity to renew friendships, relive memories and to share the common bond of belonging to a family "That Cares" — the family of Coahoma Junior College.

The predicted weather forecast calling for an 80 percent chance of precipitation throughout Homecoming day (October 6) can be accurately reported at 100 percent sure, as heavy rain came down all day. However, this did not puncture the spirits of the 1984 homecoming parade as hundreds of friends and fans braced the weather with colorful umbrellas, rain coats, ponchos, and hats to watch Coahoma's 1984 Homecoming parade: The dignitaries, the queens, the winning floats, the lovely ladies, et al.

There's nothing quite like the colorful pageantry of CJC homecoming festivities: the homecoming parade, the football game, the crowning of Miss Homecoming and other activities that make homecoming special at Coahoma. Shown are: 1. Debra McDaniel, Sophomore Maid. 2. Lula Young, Freshman Maid. 3. Thurman Boykins, Grand Marshal. 4. The football game. 5. The winning float. 6. Chandra Brown, Miss Homecoming. 7. Homecoming is an annual event that CJC students and citizens of Coahoma County and surrounding areas look forward to with excitement. Bands from Clarksdale and nearby towns come to help make Coahoma's Homecoming a gala festive occasion.

STUDENT LIFE

Outside of the classroom, many students find the need to relax.

Whether it is utilizing the facilities at the college union, enjoying some of the campus activities, or merely lounging around in the soothing depths of the dormitory, recreation dramatizes one of the more colorful sides of Student Life at Coahoma Junior College.

The following pages are devoted to the many facets of Student Life at CJC.

The Pride of CJC . . .

... The Tiger Marching Band

The Coahoma Pride Tiger Band continues the tradition of sharing its unique, majestic, and vibrant sounds. The band's ability to electrify their audiences through their performances earned them the honor of being selected to represent Coahoma County at the World's Fair in New Orleans. At the Fair, the Pride Band superbly demonstrated their talents at the Mississippi and U.S. Pavilions. The colorful Tiger Dolls added glamor, beauty, charisma and charm to the performance.

CJC Choir Presents Pre-Christmas Concert

The melodic voices of the Coahoma Junior College Choir were superbly blended in angelic renditions of selected Christmas music resounding the spirit of the Yuletide season.

The choir, in magnificent splendor, received ovations from a responsive audience. Special features of the concert were solos, and selections from the male and the female ensembles.

At a special ceremony held during the 1984-85 spring semester, Dr. McKinley C. Martin and Mr. Charles Reid simulated in Arbor Day planting.

Coahoma Continues to Grow

Center for Physical Operations

Coahoma's spirit of caring is reflected through its building program. In the college's quest to enhance its service areas and its vocational-technical capabilities, two buildings — a Center for Physical Operations and an Annex to the present Vocational Shop Building — are under construction.

The Center for Physical Operations will house distribution and inventory, shipping and receiving, maintenance, and a bus shop.

Shown on the opposite page is the Annex to the existing Vocational Shop Building. The Annex will provide additional space for vocational-technical training.

The Delta viewers were challenged to continue their caring and sharing in the successes of Coahoma Junior College when County Board of Supervisor William "Billy" Howell joined President McKinley C. Martin in presenting the College's Endowment program on WXVT television's Channel 15 "Impact" series, hosted by Harold Dale (far right).

EDITOR'S MESSAGE

Because Coahoma Junior College "Cares," memories of the 1985 school year have been designed and compiled into one reflection — THE 1985 COAHOMAN.

To you who view this book, we hope you will recognize that the accomplishments, triumphs, and all other events which characterized this school year, have faithfully portrayed Coahoma Junior College as "The College That Cares."

The cooperation, the dedication, and the proficiency of the Coahoman staff has made my year as Editor-In-Chief pleasurable and rewarding. Thus, I take this opportunity to express my deepest gratitude to Co-Editors Sylvia Henderson and Adrian Lee. Thanks also to our hard working Associate and Sports Editor Carl Powell, and to the Staff Assistants Rachel Danzler, Linda Hemphill, Carolyn Willis, Gloria Scott, and others who helped to make this yearbook a reality. The staff worked this year with one goal in mind — to put together a yearbook comparable to Coahoma's tradition of "caring and sharing."

In reflecting upon my year as editor of this publication, I cannot close this volume of the 1985 Coahoman without recognizing individuals who supported us in completing this yearbook. My sincere thanks to Mr. Timothy Burrell who worked diligently as our photographer; Mr. Thomas Richardson and Mr. Henry Dorsey of the Art Department who shared their artistic abilities with the staff, and; Mrs. Mary Jones, Communication Clerk, who helped the staff with typing.

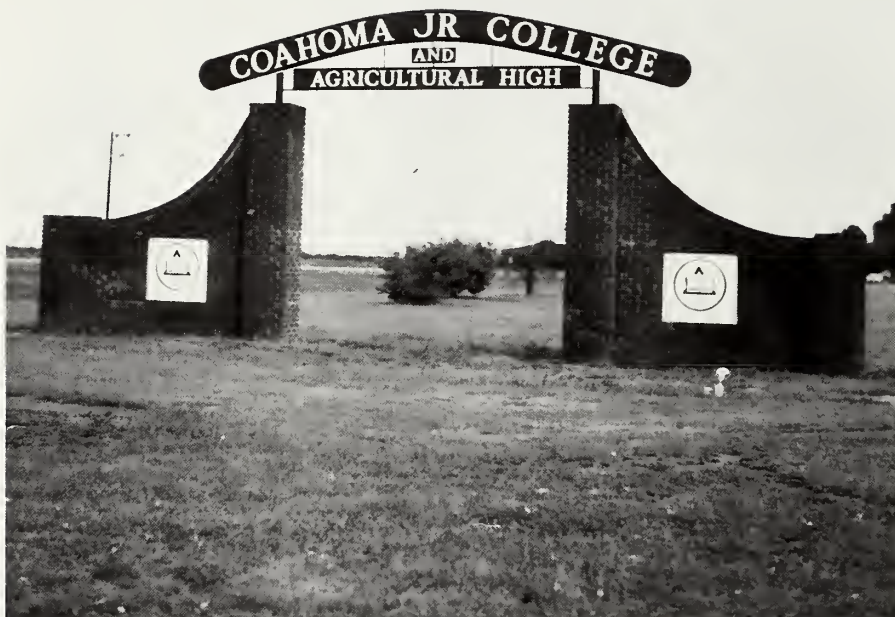

To our President, Dr. McKinley C. Martin, I extend a "heartfelt" thank you for your invaluable support, concern, and understanding in the production of this yearbook. With these essential ingredients, the production of this yearbook was filled with excitement, and most of all, enjoyment.

To our Advisor, Miss Hattie L. Jenkins, who worked extremely close with us, a special thank you. Your dedication and understanding helped us to become more aware of our responsibilities.

Therefore, with the support of these individuals, I leave my work with satisfaction and pleasure knowing I have done the very best that I could do.

I leave the 1985 Coahoman and a year of my life with you.

Josezetta Naomi Brown

Coahoma, the people-centered college — The Commitment, The Involvement, and the Excitement which help make Coahoma Junior College “The College That Cares” — has been highlighted in the 1985 Coahoman. This edition was designed to preserve, for posterity, the fond memories of CJC’s prestigious heritage of “Caring.”

Throughout this publication we have portrayed an efficient-progressive administration, and an energetic and intellectual faculty and staff designing and implementing programs and activities that hallmark Coahoma Junior College’s tradition of sharing and caring.

The 1985 Coahoman also features an exciting and eager student body who, as they prepare for bright futures, have earned for the College and themselves honors and awards.

This volume, too, contains an alumni who take pride in the accomplishments of their alma mater. Allegiance to the concept of Coahoma Junior College’s tradition of “Caring,” is reflected by their loyalty and devotion to CJC.

The Coahoman staff closes its 1985 yearbook with the assurance that Coahoma Junior College’s tradition of “Caring” will continue to enrich the lives of those who come to chart their future at Coahomna.

You have now reached the end of the 1985 edition of the Coahoman. The facts of Coahoma Junior College being “The College That Cares,” are expressed throughout the one hundred and fifty pages of this book. However, this is not all. Since this side of the book was designed right side up and forward, the remaining seventy-four pages, upside down and forward is The Aggian, 1985. So, if you want to continue viewing this book but can’t figure out how to get to the other side, just follow the instructions below:

Go back to the place where you began, close the book, hold it in both hands, and flip it over. Now you can view the 1985 Aggian — “Preparing.”

Being Editor for the 1984-85 Yearbook, I can certainly say it has been an experiencing yet challenging job. After choosing the theme, "Caring and Preparing," we tried to put together memories of Aggie that will be cherished forever. Although there were times when we felt deadlines would not be made, there were always staff members there who cared and made ends meet. I have enjoyed serving as your Editor and would like to thank the annual staff, photographers, and our advisor, for showing how much they cared and prepared everlasting memories of Aggie. In closing I would like to wish the future annual staff members much success in their untiring effort in preparing the 1985-86 Yearbook. We cared and prepared.

Thank You,
Davelyn Jordan

Respectfully, caring and preparing is the theme for the 1984-85 Coahoma Agricultural High School Yearbook. In addition to readying ourselves to conquer the obstacles that fate has presented, we, the Tigers, are exhibiting sincere interest both academically and socially around our campus that is worthy of pictorial representation. Thus, despite the difficulty involved in illustrating our theme, we have in its entirety, diligently tried to exhibit enough of what has been the tenacious life and spirit of the very cooperative faculty and students of Aggie High.

A special thanks is always appropriate for those who worked untiringly to make this book a success. Meeting deadlines, laying out, and adding finishing touches were not facile. Because we cared and shared our ideas, in my opinion, we have succeeded in making this book the great success that it is.
